OVERVIEW OF ACCREDITATION

- Accreditation of university planning degree programs has two components
 - First-time accreditation of new programs
 - Re-accreditation of existing programs
- Accreditation may be given for up to five (5) years
- For first-time accreditations, and re-accreditation upon expiry of the accreditation period, the Accreditation Program Committee (APC) appoints a Site Visit Team to conduct an intensive review
- In between intensive reviews, each accredited program must file an annual report (reviewed by the Chair of that program's Site Visit Team)
- Site Visit Team reports reviewed by APC and the PSB Board
- Universities have an opportunity to appeal Site Visit Team reports and recommendations
- Three recommendations are possible:
 - Deny accreditation
 - Confirm unconditional accreditation for up to five (5) years
 - Confirm accreditation subject to conditions for up to five (5) years

ACCREDITATION PROCESS

- Accreditation process is supervised by the Accreditation Program Committee (APC)
- APC will contact the University planning degree program administration ahead of expiration of accreditation with a request for an application for re-accreditation
- APC will appoint a three-person site visit team
 - One out-of-PTIA member
 - One in-PTIA member
 - One ACUPP member

ACCREDITATION PROCESS

- The Chair of the site visit team (appointed by APC) will contact the program administration to arrange the site visit
 - Site visit takes place only after the application for re- accreditation is received by APC
 - Site visit (estimate two to three days for a single program) includes:
 - Meeting with the program administration
 - One-on-one interviews with faculty
 - Interviews with at least five (5) current students (ideally, SVT will meet with the program's entire student body)
